TEACHER TELLS TALES

For two years I taught at P.S. 16 which was located in a middle income area of our city. The principal was Mrs. Henrietta Gelber. We had a tacit understanding. She would leave me alone, and I wouldn't bother her. All she wanted was that I keep discipline and teach the children. I recently saw a report showing how little kids learn today. But what about teacher learning from the kids? I certainly had a lot of experiences from my contact with them.

In my class was Freddy. At the rate he was putting on weight, before he reached his twenty-first birthday, I was certain he would take the prize as the stoutest man in the country. He had one big appetite. Three times a week, weather permitting, I took my class to the yard of the playground. Five other teachers did the same. To my surprise, Mrs. Kendall, who was Freddy's mother came into the yard.

"Freddy forgot to take his lunch with him," she explained to me. "And I certainly do not want my child to be hungry. Could you please find him for me."

So with Mrs. Kendall at my side, I walked around the yard. I stepped two boys from another class.

One boy answered in the negative. The other boy asked a simple question:

"How does he look?

So Mrs. Kendall went into a complete description of her offspring.

"Oh, you mean Creampuff," replied the boy. "He's on the baseball diamond. Some good hitter. We want him on our team. He's the only guy here with two nicknames. Some call him Balloon and others Cream Puff."

It was about three weeks later that I sort of realized Freddy was getting a little thinner. Maybe the words of that kid had some effect on mother. But he still could bat them out on the baseball diamond.

Every Friday afternoon, for half an hour, we had "Free Time." The kids could play games in the room. Thomas was in charge this time.

"Many words have a double meaning in our language," he said, "and sometimes many more meanings. Give me one word with several meanings."

Joey raised his hand and gave them the word "well" as an example:

"It can mean a hole in the ground you dig to get water; it can mean how you feel; and it can even be something you say when you are annoyed."

"Is there any word in our language that only has two meanings?" continued Thomas.

"I know such a word," grinned Marshal. "Twins. Means two kids. Can be a girl and a girl or a boy and a girl."

Coming to think about it, I would have to say that Marshal was correct in his answer.

"What is the longest word in our language?" demanded Marshal.

Several hands went up and he called upon Miriam. She went up to the blackboard and then wrote this word on it with chalk: "pneumo - no - ultramicro - picsilicovol - canocan - iosis." And she knew just what it meant: "A disease of the lungs caused by the breathing of extremely fine siliceous dust particles." When I went home, I looked it up in my dictionary. You will find it on page 1109 of "The Random House Dictionary of the English Language." Sure, I myself learned another word. But I will admit I couldn't spell it!

There's a saying that goes something like this: "Hell hath no fury like that of a woman scorned." Frieda has two long braids. Jimmy seemed to like her for two weeks. Then he turned his attention to another girl. And he sort of became mean. He would pull on those two hair braids. I scolded him several times, but to no effect. Then Frieda went into action. It happened in the lunchroom. She sat down next to him at the table.

"Mother got some lingonberry preserves from Sweden. I asked her to make an extra sandwich for you. Try it."

And Jimmy ate all of it. He certainly enjoyed it very much. Then Frieda went into action.

"I also put into it some ground up worms. Hope you liked them too. That's nothing like [illegible] get next if you try to pull my hair braids."

Sure, he was as sick as a dog. Next [illegible] mother came with fury in her eyes. I explain[illegible] tire situation and then added: "Frieda [illegible] ding him. I think she really likes him."

And a week later, Jimmy told everyone [illegible] was his girl. Life is never dull in a class[illegible]

Never finished high school?

Now you can get a diploma without going back

You already know why it's important to have a high school education. You've probably learned the hard way that it can be pretty difficult to get the kind of job you want without one. No matter how hard you're willing to work.

What can you do about it?

Maybe you've thought of trying again to get a diploma. But you've suffered enough classroom "battle fatigue" to last you a lifetime. So you'd hate to travel that route again even if you could.

But what if we told you that there was now a much better way to get a high school education? An adult way, which gives you regular high school subjects and your choice of practical vocational subjects which help you get started in one of a number of profitable fields.

That's the unique Wayne School way. You do your reading and assignments in your spare time, in the relaxed atmosphere of your own home, and "turn in" your completed assignments by mail. You don't have to give up your present job. You don't have to study or travel to class at inconvenient times.

Wayne School
wants to help you finish high school at home

And you needn't be afraid of dropping out all over again, if you had trouble with school before. Wayne's specially prepared lessons make even difficult subjects much easier to take. And Wayne grades your assignments in private, by mail. You're free from competitive classroom pressures. You stay relaxed, and your progress is much smoother.

If you're 17 or over and not now in school, why not send for more information? Mail coupon for our free booklet, "How to finish High School at home." You're in for a pleasant surprise.
